Shure debuts the second generation of the celebrated SE846 Sound Isolating Earphones, featuring two new colors, a new selectable sound signature, an expanded sleeve assortment, and updated packaging.

The SE846 Gen 2, which was launched October 13 at Home Table in Quezon City, introduces two new metallic colors, jade and graphite, along with an updated clear model. The bold two-tone design of the graphite and jade variants presents a color on the exterior shell while showcasing the precision engineered components through a clear inside casing.

Shure unveils next generation SE846 Sound Isolating earphones

Published October 21, 2022, 11:54 AM
by Jonathan Castillo

The Shure SE846 Sound Isolating Earphones have long set the standard for high-performance audio in the professional music industry and among audiophiles. Ten years after the launch of the highly regarded original, Shure today debuts the second generation of the celebrated earphones, featuring two new colors, a new selectable sound signature, an expanded sleeve assortment, and updated packaging.

The SE846 Gen 2 introduces two new metallic colors, Jade and Graphite, along with an updated Clear model. The bold two-tone design of the Graphite and Jade versions presents a color on the exterior shell while showcasing the precision engineered components through a clear inside casing.
